A CLEAN SWEEP

In Department Offices May Be Made by the 15th of June.

Tennessee Politicians Indignant Because a Republican is Left in Charge of One of the Departments.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—Some of the democratic politicians in Washington, in fact nearly all of them, are much more cheerful than a month ago. They have come to the conclusion that the administration intends to give the rank and file of the party a pretty fair showing after all.

It was their original belief, based upon expressions coming from the white house and the departments, that changes in office would be made only where chances were compelled; that the spirit of the mugwump was abroad in the land and that civil service reform had at least come to stay. For some reason best known to themselves they have changed their minds. It is now the conviction that by the 15th of next June there will be a clean sweep in the offices, or nearly all that are not directly governed by the civil service law.

Judge Richard Field, of Kansas City, is in Washington, as an applicant for the United States attorneyship of the western district of Missouri. He is one of the pioneers, and one of the most prominent members of the state bar and is backed by the leading citizens of his section. He has long been celebrated in the jurisprudence of the west, and is a relative of the Field family which has displayed so much forensic and legal ability.

There was especial wrath yesterday among these scattered remnants of the Tennessee delegation who still walk with hollow footsteps the corridors of the Ebbitt. Nine out of every ten have gone home, but a few of them are left. The cause of the trouble appeared to lie in the fact that as the first assistant postmaster general had not yet been appointed, and as Mr. Bissell goes to New York to witness the naval review, during his absence the ranking officer of the postal department will be Hon Clay Evans, second assistant postmaster general and one of the most prominent republicans of the south. They considered, the Tennesseans did, that, as the administration is democratic, leaving a republican at the head of one of its most important departments, even though for only a week, was an outrage sufficient to make Andrew Jackson turn over in his grave.

THE CLARK CASE.

The Testimony in the Trial is Nearly Ended.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Ind., April 21.—An audience, larger than heretofore, was in the court room yesterday. The defense is examining witnesses lively, and the trial will probably be ended this week. William B. King swore that but one shot was fired in the auditorium of the opera house, but that there were from thirty to fifty fired from behind the stage. He was certain there was but one in the main part of the house. Mr. King's testimony differs from that of all the other 150 persons who have testified in the two cases. He heard the firing behind the scenes, but was watching the audience, which caused the prosecutor to ask him if he "bent his ears behind the stage and scattered his eyes over the audience." He said no. The defense rushed their witnesses through on the double quick.

Miss Lucas [illegible] she sat in section D, and that when the trouble commenced she made her way out and returned for her father, when she heard a shot fired near the entrance.

John Maule was called for the defense and detailed that he was acquainted with Timothy Finnigan and was partially acquainted with his reputation for morality. His reputation was good in some respects and bad in others. In cross-examination witness stated that all he knew of Finnigan was his reputation for getting drunk.

Other witnesses swore to Finnegan's bad reputation. Finnegan had sworn positively that he heard the defendant, Peter Clark, say (on the morning of the night on which the riot occurred) to a third person, whom he (Finnigan) did not know, "Are you coming up to the opera house tonight? We're going to have a hell of a time." On the cross-examination the defendant's counsel put the lad through a very close and rigid questioning. His testimony was at once recognized as very important, as going to substantiate the claim of the prosecution that there was a conspiracy formed in advance to mob the speaker, Professor Rudolph.

ABOUT HAWAII.

A Brother of the President of That Island Interviewed.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., April 21.—George H. Dole, a brother of Sanford B. Dole, president of the provisional government of Hawaii, arrived here last night and was asked how he thought the hauling down of the American flag would affect the question of annexation. He said:

"I do not believe that Blount's action in removing the American flag and troops from Hawaii will affect our chances for annexation in any way. In fact, I believe it will help it. I think that President Cleveland wants to put Hawaii in a position where the United States can treat with her as an independent power.

"As to the question whether the movement on the part of England in fortifying Vancouver has any significance in regard to Hawaii, I am satisfied that neither England nor any other foreign power wants Hawaii, or in any way cares to take complications with the United States. The reports that the queen will be re-established is absurd. The provisional government has now a fine body of trained troops and is in a position to maintain itself against any internal disaffection."

TWO CONVICTS ESCAPE

Threw Pepper in the Guard's Eyes, Then Locked Him and Another Guard in the Cells.

SING SING, N. Y., April 21.—Murderers Thomas Pallister and Frank W. Rohle, both under sentence of death, have escaped from the condemned cells of Sing Sing prison. The discovery was made at 5:40 o'clock this morning.

When Guard Glinn entered the condemned cell building, as usual, at that hour, he was astonished at discovering the two night watchmen locked in the murderers' cells. When the guards were released they told a remarkable story.

Guard Hulse said that at 7 o'clock last night he passed supper into Pallister. The condemned man threw a handful of pepper into the guard's eyes. Hulse was blinded and Pallister rushed on him, took his revolver away from him and under threats of death, forced Hulse into his (Pallister's) cell, first taking the keys away from him. He then locked Hulse in the cell and unlocked the cell of murderer Frank Rohle. The two murderers then unlocked the cells of Carlyle W. Harris and murderer Osmond. They invited these two to escape with them. Both Harris and Osmond refused their offer to escape.

Pallister and Rohle waited until 9 o'clock, when Guard Murphy came on duty. As Murphy entered the corridor Pallister presented his pistol at Murphy's head and taking his keys away from him, locked him in Rohle's cell. Pallister took Guard Hulse's shoes and cap away from him and put them on himself, threatening to kill the guards if they made any outcry.

The two murderers climbed to the top of the cells and knocked off the scuttle in the roof. In this way they got on the roof, climbed down into the yard and made their escape, whether by the river or over the walls was not known yet. The terrible storm last night of course facilitated their escape.

As soon as the escape was reported Warden Brown sent out his men to scour the country. It is supposed that Pallister had been saving the pepper given him daily with his meals with the object of escape in view.

BELGIUM'S SYSTEM OF VOTING.

The New Plan as Provided for by the Nysson Bill.

BRUSSELS, April 21.—The scheme of plural or cumulative voting provided for in the Nysson bill confers a vote on every male citizen aged twenty five years, who has resided at least one year in the same community, and has never been convicted of a breach of the law. The bill confers an additional vote on those who possess the following qualifications (1) Every male citizen, aged thirty-five years, and either married or a widower, paying a government tax of at least five francs in amount, unless exempted from a tax on account of his profession. (2) Upon every male citizen aged twenty-five years who is an owner of real estate of the value of at least 2,000 francs, or who has been inscribed for at least two years on the ledger of the public debt, or in the stock book of a bank for savings, as the possessor of at least 100 francs in Belgian rentes. (3) Upon every male citizen aged twenty five years, who is the bearer of a diploma of superior education, or a similar certificate showing that he has attained a complete course of instruction in a public or private seminary, or that is filling or that has filled a public office, or is holding or has held a position, or is exercising, or has exercised, a profession implying superior education, the question as to what positions and professions are to be regarded as qualifying under this clause to be decided by law.

No person is to be entitled to more than three votes, and voting is made obligatory.

A dispatch from Paris says it is reported that the Belgian deputies were moved to accept the Nysson proposals by King Leopold's threat to dissolve the chamber. Both the pope and Mr. Gladstone urged the king to take this position. As England was a party to the agreement neutralizing Belgium in 1831, her ministry felt warranted in trying to dissuade the king from incurring the grave responsibility of forcing the people to revolution.

SPECULATION DID IT.

A Prominent Kansas Man Arrested for the Larceny of $8,000.

ABILENE, Texas, April 21.—George A. Pearce, a prominent business man, was arrested yesterday, charged with the grand larceny of $8,000 from the Merchants' and Planters' Insurance company, of Mobile, of which he was formerly secretary. Pearce is a brother-in-law of Thomas H. West, a St. Louis millionaire. He was connected with the firm of Porter & Reeves until their failure and then became the junior member of one of the largest real estate and insurance firms in the place. He had nothing to say further than that he had used money for his private speculation during the Birmingham boom, which he should not have used and which speculation resulted disastrously for him, making him short in his accounts with the insurance company.

TERRIBLE RUINS

Wrought by the Cyclone Which Swept Over the South.

Its Destructive Work Last Night at Detroit, Mich., Columbus, O., and Other Places.

MERIDIAN, Miss., April 21.—Ruin and desolation marks the path of the cyclone Wednesday night in Jasper and Clarke counties. Where on Wednesday stood happy homes and fertile farming lands, today is a blackened, blighted waste.

Here a mother sits over her ruined household goods with a dead infant in her arms, forgetting, in her grief, nature's cravings. Again will be found persons wildly seeking relatives and friends who were blown away and have not since been heard from. For thirty miles at intervals can be seen heaps of ruins where once stood a home.

At 7 o'clock on Wednesday night the clouds struck the town of Barnett, demolishing houses and killing, carrying away and wounding people by the score. Over 100 houses are in ruins in the immediate neighborhood.

The house at William R. Baker, a mile from Barnett, was carried away and the family of seven have not since been heard of. William Parcein, wife and four children were killed. The baby was saved. Parcein's body was found six miles from his home and a quarter of a mile further on were found the bodies of his wife and three children. Minerva Steven's body was blown a mile and killed.

The child of Sam McGown, was blown away and for a mile was carried over the tops of threes and had its brains dashed out at the foot of a stump. Isaac Aldridge's home was destroyed, but himself and wife escaped with bruises. George McLaughlin's residence, the finest in Jasper county, was destroyed; his family escaped with slight bruises, but losing much valuable stock. Four negroes were killed on McLaughlin's place. Eleven negroes are known to have been killed in the vicinity of Barnett, but their names cannot be learned.

At Quitman, Miss., twenty six miles from here, the havoc wrought by the cyclone is greater than at first reported. The storm barely missed Quitman, and passing 200 yards north and tearing the timbers from the roots. The casualties are still coming in. Though but few were killed outright, yet several of the wounded are not expected to live. The following represents the victims living in a radius of five miles of Quitman:

William Aldridge's house was blown completely away, and Mrs. Aldridge received a fracture of the skull and contusion of flesh by flying timbers and has since died. Aldridge was seriously and his son badly injured. James Giles' house was demolished and his family all injured. Daniel Shotts, with a large family, had his place swept clean and family all seriously hurt by being carried a considerable distance along with the flying debris. John King suffered a like fate, and several members of his family were badly bruised. Eight or nine other houses were blown away and several of the inmates wounded. James Parker's residence was swept away and Parker's wife and mother seriously injured. P. H. Culpepper's house was blown away and he received fatal injuries.

The trees on the Chickasabay river swamp, which for hugeness and density are seldom equalled, were uprooted, twisted and bent into all conceivable shapes, a path varying in width from 200 yards to three miles being cut through the swamp. The bodies of three unknown negroes were found in the swamp, a mile from Quitman. Mrs. Suttle, an aged lady, and a child of Wm. Sounder were also killed.

DETROIT, Mich., April 21.—Throughout this city business and private houses suffered severely by a fierce gale last night. Roofs were torn off, electric towers were blown down and a number of persons were seriously injured by falling signs. At one time the wind attained a velocity of seventy-five miles and hour and at 10 o'clock last night was blowing forty-seven miles an hour.

Ypsilanti, which suffered so heavily from the recent cyclone, received another hard blow yesterday. The heavy rains have damaged property there to the extent of $30,000.

Cook & Brown, furniture dealers, suffered another big loss of their stock by reason of water pouring in. The work of putting roofs on buildings damaged by the recent tornado has progressed as rapidly as possible, but most buildings are open to the elements. The Scharf Toy and Box factory lost a stock valued at $40,000 and it will prove nearly a total loss. A conservative estimate of the damage done in this part of the state during the past twenty-four hours is $225,000.

At 10 o'clock last night a telephone message from Amherstburg, Ont., at the mouth of the Detroit river, stated that a small schooner had been blown on to the beach a few miles below there on the shore of the Lake Erie, and that three of her crew are missing. The report failed to give the names of the vessel or the missing men. A relief party at once started for the rescue.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 21.—During a high wind here last evening the chimney of a house at 16 McDowell street blew off burying Daniel Driskell, a boy, under the debris, killing him instantly.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The heavy easterly gale destroyed all communication with Sandy Hook and the life saving stations along the coast and nothing has been heard from them since yesterday afternoon. With the exception of the Belgian steamer Rhynland, which arrived yesterday noon, no vessels of any kind arrived at quarantine until early this morning. The steamers arriving this morning all report violent weather and terrific high seas. The steamer Alamo, which arrived this morning from Colon, reports passing off Long Branch yesterday, two boats one with three coal barges and the other with two in tow. One of the barges was in a sinking condition and a tow boat along side taking off the crew. Another barge had broken adrift. The tow boat appeared to be the Morse and one of the barges was marked "Pocahontas." One of these vessels belong to the Boston Tow Boat company.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

A Committee Will Inquire Into Claims of Territories.

Knocking for Admission Into the Sisterhood of States—Other Matters of General Interest.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The committee on territories will begin the investigation of the condition of the four territories now knocking for admission to the sisterhood of states early in July. Chairman Faulkner has not yet decided his selection of the sub-committee, but he has decided that the start will be made from Chicago June 1 and he expects to complete the work within one month from that date. The committee will go direct to Utah, where they will look into the condition of affairs and then pass through the northern part of New Mexico and Arizona, via the Atlantic and Pacific, and through the southern part via the Southern Pacific. From these western territories they will return by way of Oklahoma.

Senator Butler, chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, has not yet arranged for the investigation authorized by the senate and will take no steps in that direction until in May sometime, when he will call the committee together for that purpose. It is not likely, Mr. Butler thinks, that the committee will go to Toledo to investigate the disturbances among the railroad men, out of which came the decision of Judge Taft in the United States court sitting in that city. Such investigation of this part of the matter as may be made will be conducted in this city.

WASHINGTON, April 21. The supreme court of the United States has given notice that it will hear no more arguments after the 25th of this month. It will probably then take a recess for ten days or two weeks, again convene about the 5th of May and adjourn about the 15th of May. The only case in which argument will be heard will be a case in which the constitutionality of the Geary act will be tested on the 5th of May. By the provisions of this act all Chinese now in the United States and who have not complied with the provisions of this act as to registration, are subject to deportation. This, of course, is impracticable, but as already stated in these dispatches, the understanding is that several Chinamen will be arrested in New York city on the 6th of May and in this way the case will be brought directly to the supreme court, whereby the law can be tested. Solicitor General Aldrich will appear for the United States making his last official appearance in the supreme court in support of the constitutionality of the Geary act. As at present arranged the new solicitor general, Mr. Maxwell, will officially enter upon the discharge of his new duties on the 1st of June next. Assistant Attorney General Whitney, of New York, will assume the discharge of his official duties September 28.

Orders have been issued at the treasury department for the revenue cutter Rush, Corwin and Bear to prepare at once for their summer cruise in the Artic ocean, where they will assist the United States men of war in patrolling the open sea, in conjunction with the British vessels in carrying out the provisions of the modus vivendi agreed upon by the United States and Great Britian to prevent peligaric sealing in those waters. These revenue cutters will rendezvous at Port Townsend, Wash., until May 15, when they will enter the Arctic ocean. The Bear will tow up from San Francisco the United States man of war Iroquois, which has been turned over to the United States marine hospital service, and will be stationed at Fort Townsend as hospital during the summer. Officers have been ordered to these vessels in addition to those already on, as follows: Third Lieutenant J. E. Johnson, to the Rush; Third Lieutenant F. G. Dodge to the Bear; Assistant Engineer F. B. Randall, to the Corwin.

MINNEAPOLIS FIRE.

Narrow Escape From Death of Boarding House Lodgers.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 21.—J. A. Shea's fruit commission house, on Bridge square, was burned at 2 o'clock this morning and the Jewel lodging house was badly damaged. The lodgers escaped in their night garments and two men were almost unconscious when they were dragged from the third story. Shea's loss is $20,000, insured for $15,000. The building owned by the Great Northern Railroad company, was valued at $20,000. The lodging house was damaged several thousand dollars.

Prince Bismarck Ill.

HAMBURG, April 21.—Prince Bismarck is suffering from an indisposition or slight illness which does not however, cause the slightest anxiety, but is regarded as trifling and transient.

She Believes in Putting Socialistic Ideas Into Practice at Once.

TOPEKA, Kas., April 21.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, the populist prophetess and president of the state board of charitable institutions, has much to say on Kansas politics. As Mrs. Lease is the one person responsible for the defeat of ex Senator John J. Ingalls, and was forced to flee from Topeka on account of which fight she wrote and published in a Chicago paper at the instance of the republican state central committee, receiving therefor $80, and in addition became well known on the platform in the eastern states, her words are of interest. She says in reference to the political situation:

"It would be folly for me to make any predictions just now. I am more than ever impressed that we are on the verge of a great upheaval, both socially and politically. How quiet it is just now! What does it all mean, unless it is that calm which always precedes a great storm? The 1st of May is almost here. It is possible the upheaval will come then, but it may be withheld until later. Here in Topeka and in Kansas this strike is just a foretaste of what is to follow."

In speaking of the industrial legion, the military inner circle of the alliance, Mrs. Lease said: "I have been opposed to the idea of such an organization from the first. The people have all the organizations they can stand now in the alliance. The only good a new organization can be put to is to push three or four leaders to the front who would otherwise remain in obscurity."

"You don't mean Taubeneck, do you?" queried the reporter.

"Yes, I do, that is just who I mean," and Mrs. Lease's eyes snapped as she added: "I mean such a fellow as Taubeneck and Paul Vandervoort, who are trying to force themselves on the public."

She believes Senator Martin will soon join the populists, deeming that the only course open to him. She declares that he is not in accord with the policy or principles of President Cleveland and that he will not submit to the president. Mrs. Lease is a thorough socialist and believes the people's party should commence putting the socialistic ideas into practice. In speaking of this subject she said:

"My idea is that we should commence by introducing socialism into municipal affairs, such as municipal ownership of street railways, water works, electric light or gas plants. We should select some city, like Topeka, for instance, and concentrate all our forces to work out our ideas in one place, and then after the people see what socialism means there will be no trouble about the proper recognition of socialists. The trouble is now that the people don't understand what socialism is."

MONROEVILLE ITEMS.

Valuable Horses Poisoned—The Annual G. A. R. Encampment.

Theodore Beaty recently had the misfortune to lose a fine thoroughbred horse. At the time nothing wrong was suspected, but Monday morning when Mr. Beaty went to the barn to feed he found the second horse dead and another suffering intense pain. A short time afterward it died. The sudden death of the animals indicated that they were poisoned. The property belonged to the Wabash Importing company. They were at once notified of the loss. The owners arrived here Monday noon and with a veterinary surgeon repaired to the farm of Mr. Beaty where they removed the stomachs and took them to Fort Wayne to be analized.

There was no afternoon session at the public schools Thursday on account of the G. A. R. encampment at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Tryon visited friends in Van Wert the fore part of this week.

Prof. B. Clapham, of the public schools, has accepted a position as manager of one of the world's fair buildings.

Yesterday the annual G. A. R. encampment was held at this place. Owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not the attendance expected. The visitors were met at every train and escorted to B. S. Rendelshoffer's hall, which had been decorated for the occasion. All the business houses and many of the residence were decorated.

ITALY'S EXHIBIT.

They Fill Cars Enough to Make Six Large Trains.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The exhibits sent by Italy to the world's fair in Chicago, consisting largely of art treasures, has started from Portland, Maine, for its destination. It filled enough cars to make six freight trains. The royal commissioner from Italy to the fair reached New York last week, and will be in Chicago to receive and install the exhibit upon arrival.

PHILLIPS GOES FREE!

The jury in the Phillips murder case, which has been on trial in the circuit court since last Monday morning, retired yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, to deliberate upon a verdict.

They remained in their rooms all night and at 5 o'clock this morning they notified the sheriff that they had agreed upon a verdict. Judge O'Rourke was on hand at that early hour prepared to receive it, and a few moments afterward the jury was conducted to their seats in the circuit court room and the prisoner ordered brought in.

Upon his arrival the verdict was handed to the judge. He opened it and read as follows:

"We, the jury, do find the defendant John Phillips not guilty of any of the charges brought against him."

"Is this your verdict, gentlemen?" asked Judge O'Rourke.

"It is," was the reply of the foreman, and each one of the other eleven jurymen nodded their assent.

"The prisoner is discharged," said the judge, turning to the sheriff's deputy, and at that early morning hour John Phillips walked out of court a free man.

The verdict, when it was announced on the street this morning created no surprise, for it was what almost every one who had heard the evidence supposed it would be. Green, the man shot and killed by Phillips was a desperate negro. He bore a bad character and it was pretty clearly shown by the evidence that Phillips was in danger of his life when he fired the fatal shot, for Green was attempting to enter the window of his house at the time, and he had sworn that he would kill him.

At that hour he was promptly on hand, when the trial of the case was begun. The prosecution was represented by Will C. Ryan and the defendent by Lawyer Aiken.

The first witness called was Mrs. Phil Hines, at whose home the baby had been left. She testified that a boy baby had been left on the doorstep of her home last Saturday night, and that they discovered it about 10:30 o'clock and took it into the house. It was in a basket wrapped up in clothes, and was nearly frozen and nearly starved when taken into the room. She said Dr. Thayer passed by her home about 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Emma Lee said that Dr. Thayer was at her home Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock, and inquired where Mrs. Hines lived, and she pointed out the house to him.

Miss Lydia Nolan testified to seeing the doctor on Short street where Mrs. Hines lives, about 6:30 o'clock last Saturday evening, and that he walked past the Hines home and viewed it very closely. Other witnesses testified to the same facts.

Miss Mary Henry, a young girl of about sixteen years of age, swore that she worked at Dr. Thayer's some three weeks ago for a few days. When she went there she said there were two young women there awaiting obstetrical attention, and while there two more were brought in, one of whom was Miss Kelso. The clothes that were found on the baby left at Mrs. Hines' home were brought into court and the witness identified them as the clothes worn by a baby at Dr. Thayer's during the time that she was there. Miss Henry was kept on the stand until after 2 o'clock and was rigidly cross-examined by Lawyer Aiken for the defense.

At 2:30 o'clock the prosecution closed their case and Dr. Thayer took the stand. He denied having placed, or caused to be placed, the baby on the doorstep of Mrs. Hines. The case is in progress as we go to press.

SAD DROWNING.

A sad death from drowning occurred near Churubusco yesterday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock. J. E. Powell, of Toledo, a traveling salesman for the Blade Printing company and who is well known in this city, fell from a boat while duck hunting in Blue Lake and sank before aid could be secured. Powell was accompanied by C. E. Lancaster of Churubusco. They secured a boat at McGuire's landing and at once rowed out on the lake. When out about thirty or forty rods from the landing Powell, in a standing position, shot at some ducks directly over his head. At the discharge of the gun he fell backward, overturning the boat.

The lake at the time was very rough, and whether it was the waves or the rebound of the gun which had caused him to fall into the lake is unknown. Lancaster grasped the boat and he yelled to Powell to do the same. Powell lost his hold and dropped exhausted into the lake. Lancaster yelled loudly for help. He was rescued just in time to save his life. Thomas McGuire, the keeper of the landing, and Samuel Beavers, assisted him ashore.

The body had not been recovered this morning, but as the lake is being dragged it has probably been found ere this. The deceased was a prominent K. of P. He was thirty-five years of age. The remains will be shipped to Toledo.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Mrs. Catherine Figel, an Old Resident, Dies—Other Deaths.

Catherine Figel, aged sixty-six years and nine months, died this morning at 8:30 o'clock, at her home, on Spy Run avenue, of rheumatism. The deceased was the wife of the late William Figel, who died in March, 1892. She was a woman known far and wide and highly respected. The funeral will probably be held on Sunday.

August Bumeart, aged eleven months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Bumgart, of 245 Erie street, died of bronchitis at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The remains of Edward McComley arrived from Portland, Ore., yesterday and will be buried probably Sunday afternoon from the Cathedral. The ceremonies will be under the auspices of the Catholic societies. Until then the remains will be kept at the home of his brother-in-law, Daniel J. O'Neil, 341 West Washington street.

The venerable father of Messrs. Otto G. and Gustave Klinkenberg, of this city, and Paul Klinkenberg, of Kendallville, died in Minneapolis on Monday. The funeral occurred yesterday and the sons were in attendance.

The wife of Dr. D. S. Linvillo died at Columbia City yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. The deceased was well known in Fort Wayne. The funeral will occur Sunday evening at 10:30 o'clock at the Columbia City Methodist church.

It has been decided that the funeral of the late Ed. McComley will be held from the residence of D. J. O'Neil, No. 341 West Washington street, at 12:30 Sunday afternoon, and 1 o'clock from the Cathedral.

NEW SCALE ON THE LAKE ERIE.

MUNCIE, Ind., April 21.—The difference existing between the trainmen on the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville division of the Lake Erie and Western railway has been satisfactorily adjusted by the company adopting a new scale of wages. Yesterday a bulletin was issued which increases the wages of local freight conductors twenty-five cents per day, to $3.15. Brakemen will receive $2.05 per day, an increase of fifteen cents. The through freight conductors will receive $3.05, a fifteen cent raise, and brakemen $2.05, also a fifteen cent advance. The most essential part of the new scale is the pay for overtime and when the men are off duty attending court in the company's interests. They received no pay for overtime heretofore. After twelve hours work all freight conductors will receive twenty eight cents per hour and brakemen eighteen cents. When conductors are attending trial away from home in the company's interest, they will receive $2.50 per day and $1 for expenses. Brakemen will receive $1.50 per day with the daily compensation for expenses. The trainmen made the demand two weeks ago, and a strike would have resulted. The new scale is satisfactory to the men.

YESTERDAY'S edition of the Indianapolis Sentinel was a valuable one. It consisted of twenty pages and gave a review of the progress of the state capital during the last twenty-five years, with interesting matter about the city's busy industries and the state institutions located there.

AN opinion has been given by the attorney general which says that where the holder of national bank stock pays the taxes and the bank does not, the holder is entitled to deduct indebtedness from the total credit. Under this rule stockholders of national banks in the state may subtract their legal debts from their bank stock assessment.

THE World's fair will be remarkable for the number of "congresses" which will be held during its continuance. There are meetings for discussion of various subjects of human interest. A bare outline of these meetings gives dates for eighteen of these sessions between the 15th of May and 16th of October. The first topic discussed will be, of course, "The Progress of Woman" and the last will be "Agriculture."

The Solar Eclipse.

The astronomical expeditions sent out for the observation of the total eclipse of the sun a few days since are highly gratified with their success, having secured scores of photographs of the solar appearance under the most favorable conditions. The scientific world anticipates much valuable information to be added to the scientific facts already known regarding the great solar orb. One thing has been pretty definitely established—that there is a solar atmosphere. In this eclipse at the time of totality, great streamers of light shot out from the corona, the height of one estimated at four hundred and fifty thousand miles, while two monster protuberances reached eighty thousand miles distant from the sun's surface. The occurrence of this eclipse meant the maximum period of the solar disturbances as evidenced by the great number of openings or spots that honeycomb the great source of light. On this account the observations taken are of the highest importance in the history of astronomical science.

There were no less than eight of these scientific expeditions scattered along the line of totality in South America and Africa, and at only one of these stations was the eclipse enshrouded in misty clouds and the surroundings unfavorable for satisfactory observation. When the facts gleaned by these several expeditions are collated they cannot fail to prove a most important addition to the present knowledge of the sun and its surroundings.

Political Purity

It is a sad commentary on municipal affairs when it becomes necessary to devise means for protecting the purity of the ballot box from the machination of corrupt politicians. Such, however, is the state of things in nearly every city throughout the nation. Oswego, N. Y., comes to the front with a unique plan to reform municipal politics, which has been agreed upon by the people, and they have asked the consent of the legislature to put it into operation. Briefly stated, it is this: The city is divided into four districts. In each district the names of all its legal voters are put into a wheel like that used for obtaining juries and all are then drawn; the first hundred citizens whose names are drawn form class A, the second class B, and so on to the end. Each one hundred citizens thus by chance thrown together meet and elect delegates to a council, which in its turn elects city officials for that district and also delegates to a smaller council made up of representatives from the four districts; this smaller council elects the mayor and other general city officers. At each election the whole process is repeated. The idea is that the citizens, thus divided by lot into small elective bodies cannot be easily controlled in their action by corrupt cliques or become subject to bribery. This system might be found practicable in the larger cities, and be operated with good effect.

A WELL-TO-DO winegrower from California, who is on a visit to the eastern cities, declines to commit himself on the Chinese question—if there is a question. He says: "My personal dislike to the Chinese is as strong as anybody's, but that doesn't blind me to the fact that we westerners would be nearly helpless without them. They have built our railroads, laid out our streets, hewn our wood, and drawn our water for us, and today we depend on them to run our farms and gardens, do our housework, and cook our food. They do for us what women servants do for you in the east. Besides, as between the Chinese and the men who direct hostilities against them in San Francisco, I prefer the Chinese."

ON the first day of his recent duck-shooting experience in Illinois ex-President Harrison felt very stiff in his arms and legs, and complained of it to his companions. The next day his friends equipped him in a new shirt and boots, which fitted him loosely. When he came home that night he laughingly remarked: "I am somewhat like an old fellow I knew in Hardingsburg, Ind. He became firmly convinced that he was going to be stricken with apoplexy, as he suffered nearly all day long with a smothering feeling. He visited a well-known physician in a nearby town, who, after examining him, said: 'My friend, all you need is a larger collar.'"

AMERICAN workingmen desiring to attend the world's fair at Chicago this year will be tempted to imitate their English brethren, who adopted this plan very extensively at the time of the last international exposition in France and are now trying it again: Clubs of twenty or thirty factory operatives are formed, and the members each contribute a shilling a week for several months. Reduced rates are solicited and obtained from transportation companies. When it is learned how many persons can be sent to the fair with the total amount in the treasury the fortunate few are chosen by lot.

WHEN workmen were engaged in drilling an artesian well at Centerville, Ia., recently they tapped a subterranean cavity which seemed to be completely filled with bats—not dead or petrified bats, but those of the real live kind; this at a depth of nearly six hundred feet below the surface. Several of the odd creatures were brought out alive and well. They seemed to be of the common gray species, but were of extraordinary size.

SOME of the revelations of the census will startle a good many people. For instance, there are now more than 500,000 almond trees bearing in the United States, there are hundreds of thousands of bearing cocoanut trees, there are more than 250,000 olive trees, producing fruit equal to the best Mediterranean varieties. There are now more than 500,000 bearing banana plants, 200,000 bearing lemon trees, 4,000,000 orange trees and 21,000,000 pineapples.

AN immense wooden pulley, claimed by the makers to be the largest in the world, has just been made in Columbus, Ind., and is to be exhibited at the world's fair. It is eighteen feet in diameter and has a face surface of four feet. One hundred pounds of glue, two and a half kegs of nails and twenty-eight hundred pieces of wood were used in its composition.

WOOD pulp, dissolved in alcohol, and drawn out like a spider's web into a fiber, is now being manufactured as a substitute for silk at Besancon, France. It is brilliant, tough and elastic. In composition it closely resembles guncotton, and to correct its inflammability it is soaked in ammonia.

A GERMAN tailor is reported to have brought out a bullet proof cloth which is said to be made harder than steel by hydraulic pressure and yet to be thin and elastic enough to be worn with reasonable comfort.

IF anyone has the slightest doubt whether he should use "El" or "La" he can thank the San Francisco Examiner for setting him right. El is used before nouns in the masculine gender and La before those in the feminine gender. For instance you can call a horse El Promoro or La Promora.

THE colored men of Kansas City have organized an Afro-American industrial league, the object of which is to send a colony of colored people to Brazil. All transportation charges are paid by the Brazilian government to those who desire to take up land there.

A PIECE of bark on which Daniel Boone carved his name in rude letters one hundred and thirty-three years ago will be a unique part of Tennessee's contribution to world's fair curios. The tree was long a landmark near Jonesboro, Tenn.

FUEL GAS IN THE FUTURE.

Reported Plans of the Recent Gas Combination

The recent incorporation of the Indiana Natural and Illuminating Gas company, with a capitalization of $1,000,000, has confirmed the reports current during the legislature that a gas combination was in process of formation. The incorporators, who are the members of the syndicate that purchased the Indianapolis Gas company's plant four years ago, have unlimited resources, and the assertion, made by a man in the gas business, that the consolidation will represent an investment of about $7,000,000 before it is completed indicates that the new company intends to go after a great amount of business in the natural gas field. It is said that the combination forming is a great step in advance of the time and that the projectors of the new scheme are not looking for immediate gains, but for those that will succeed the life of natural gas.

It is said that the syndicate, in buying up a great amount of gas plants, is simply providing for the future. There will be a time, it is believed, when natural gas wells will be exhausted. The great natural gas pipe systems will be useless unless a substitute for natural gas is furnished. It is said that President Dieterich, who largely manages the syndicate's affairs, is the inventor of a successful process of making fuel gas that has the heat and power of natural gas and will be almost a perfect substitute. When the gas fails it is said to be the design to build fuel gas works, and the syndicate then having possession of the pipe systems will be prepared to use them as the medium to supply old natural gas subscribers. Every connection will be made with cottage, mansion and furnace, the change will be easily made, and then departure of natural gas will not if these plans carry, be the calamity that would be expected.

STATE CHARITY STATISTICS

Original Cost, Maintenance and Inmates of State Institutions.

The charts prepared by the State Board of Charities, as a world's fair exhibit from the state institutions, will show the cost of the plants and their maintenance since they were established. The institutions under the state control number twelve, and their total cost, including grounds and improvements, to October 31, 1892, was $9,123,166.55. The operating expenses last year reached $1,071,768.42, and the total number of days board furnished during their existence has been 2,149,872. The Marion county work house $125,000. The ninety-two county jails have, at an estimate, cost $2,700,500, and during 1892 the operating expenses amounted to $152,986. The ninety-two county poor houses cost $2,370,000, and $243,972.76 was spent in operating them in 1892. The twenty-five county orphans homes in the state show an expenditure of $145,500, with expenses last year of $2,500. The counties have invested in these jails and poor houses $5,308,609, and their maintenance last year was $194,056.76. There are twenty-one institutions under private control in the state. Ten orphans' homes have cost $150,000, with $45,050 operating expenses. Rose orphans' home at Terre Haute heads the list, with $118,000 as the total cost.

The number of prisoners serving sentences in the county jails on October 31, 1892, was about 550. Of all the institutions the number of inmates was 2,702, or .0012 per cent. of the population. The dependent classes of the state numbered 9,704, divided as follows: Insane, 2,768, paupers, 3,253; aged, 325, children, 2,929; feeble minded, 428. This is on a basis of .00422 per cent. of the state's population. There are ten city hospitals in the state, containing 439 beds. During 1892 they had 2,148 patients.

CITY HALL DEDICATED.

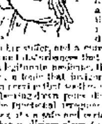

Appropriate Exercises at the New Public Building Last Night.

The new city hall was formally opened yesterday and during the evening some very entertaining exercises were held in the council chamber. A large audience was present. Mayor Zollinger delivered an address in which he reviewed the history of the construction of the fine edifice. Herman Michael, chairman of the building committee, made some fitting remarks. Others who made short addresses were C. F. Muhler, ex mayor, Hon. J. D. Sarnighausen, ex senator, Charles McCulloch, water works trustee; O. P. Morgan, school trustee, Hon. J. B. White, ex-congressman; W. H. Shambaugh, city attorney, and Hon. Edward O'Rourke, judge of the circuit court; Col. D. N. Foster and Colonel Oakley. W. P. Breen's name was on the program but he was ill and not able to attend. During the evening Herman Michael presented the mayor with a gavel made of lignum vitae. The exercises closed at 10:30 o'clock.

"THE LEAVENSWORTH CASE."

A Fine Attraction at the Temple Tomorrow Night.

An interesting drama will be presented at the Masonic Temple tomorrow night. It is Anna Katharine Green's "The Leavenworth Case," dramatized by herself from that famous novel which Wilkie Collins complimented to the highest degree. The fascinating work has this season a more perfect representation of the author's ideas than when so successfully produced last season, as Mr. Rohlfs, the husband of the author, will himself present the character of the secretary, recently played by Joseph Haworth. Mr. Rohlfs is an actor of a high order of merit, with years of experience, in the companies of Booth, Barrett, McCullough, Mary Anderson and others.

All genuine womanly suffering and woman's weakness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription puts a stop to it. It's a remedy for all the delicate derangements and disorders that make her suffer, and a cure for all the chronic disorders that make her weak. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nervine that soothes and strengthens. For bearing-down pains, displacements, and all the functional irregularities peculiar to the sex, it's a safe and certain remedy.

Other medicines claim to cure!

That's true. But they don't claim to do this: if the "Favorite Prescription" fails to benefit or cure, in every case for which it's recommended, the money paid for it is refunded.

Judge for yourself which is likely to be the better medicine.

And think whether something else offered by the dealer is likely to be "just as good."

TALES OF THE OCEANS.

DISASTERS AT SEA RECALLED BY RECENT EVENTS.

Some of the Greatest Mysteries of the Deep Are Still Unexplained—Vessels That Have Sailed Away Never Again to Return.

[New York Correspondence.]

ONE EFFECT OF the loss of the White Star Liner Naronic has been to turn attention to many ships that have gone amissing in the past. Statistics show that, while in spite of all modern improvements and the many safeguards that are thrown around the ocean traveler vessels continue to get lost, the average marine disaster is not as high as it was in days gone by, nor are the wrecks of today characterized by the same appalling loss of life which as a rule distinguished those of earlier times.

The Naval Hydrographer calculates that in recent years there has been an annual total loss of 2,172 vessels representing in value about $100,000,000. The annual loss of life is placed at 12,000.

The loss of merchant and other ships from various causes was estimated at Lloyds in 1800 to be about an average of 355 ships a year. In 1830 it was shown that 677 British vessels alone were wrecked during the year, but the number of ships afloat at that period was insignificant compared with what it is now.

Subsequent years, particularly that of 1852, were very disastrous to shipping. The year 1852 was more prolific in marine disasters than any which had preceded it. In the following twenty-five years it is estimated that at least 60,000 wrecks occurred.

The long list of vessels whose loss at sea was attended with frightful fatality is led off with the British cruiser Mary Rose, 60 guns, which upset in a squall in the year 1545, drowning all hands. The next important wrecks were those of the Coronation, 90 guns; the Harwich, 70 guns, and the Royal Sovereign, Stirling Castle, and Northumberland. The 100-gun battleship Victory drowned her crew of 700 off the Isle of Alderney on Oct. 5, 1744, and during the same year the Namur, 74 guns, foundered in the East Indies, losing all of her crew of 485 men except 26 persons. Almost at the same time the 60-gun ship Pembroke was wrecked off Porto Novo, and 330 of her crew perished.

The wreck of the Ville de Paris, of 104 guns, one of Admiral Rodney's prizes, shortly followed. Then came the disasters to the 74-gun ship Superb, the Cato, Admiral Sir Hyde Parker's flagship, and the brig Indiaman, Count Belgioioso, which went down off Dublin Bay, drowning 147 of her passengers and crew.

The wreck of the Indiaman Halsewell followed soon after. She carried 386 persons to the bottom. The frigate Pandora next drowned 100 of her crew and then the British frigate Lutine was wrecked off the coast of Holland. Only one person was saved from the wreck and he died before reaching England.

During the next decade many transports and men-of-war were lost. The frigate Ajax was destroyed off the Isle of Tenedos, in which disaster 250 persons perished. Soon afterward the Prince of Wales and Rochdale, two big British vessels, went ashore on the Irish coast, drowning 300 of those on board.

Scores of other disasters followed, but one of the most pitiful of all was the loss of the ship Amphitrite, bound to New South Wales with female convicts on board. The vessel was lost on Boulogne Sands, and out of 131 persons on board only three were saved.

The dreary record of death at sea without any effort being made to save the voyagers is broken by the account of the steamship Forfarshire. That vessel went ashore during a violent gale, but through the efforts of the Outer Fern lighthouse-keeper, James Darling and his heroic daughter Grace, fifteen of the fifty-three who were on board were saved.

The Protector, an East Indiaman, went down with 180 of her 196 passengers and crew off Bengal, and then the transport Lord William Bentinck went down off Bombay, taking recruits, passengers and crew with her.

THE LOSS OF THE [illegible]

York, bound for Liverpool, in March, 1841, was among the first of these. Among her passengers, of whom she carried a large number, was Tyrone Power, the comedian, and a son of the Duke of Richmond. The vessel's fate is still unknown.

The next to disappear and leave no trace behind was the Glasgow steamer [illegible], which cleared port with 189 persons on board and has never since been heard of. The Pacific, a Collins Line steamer, left Liverpool for New York in January, 1856. She had 186 persons on board. It is supposed that the vessel struck an iceberg and sank immediately after, but her fate is mere conjecture, as nothing has ever been heard from her since she left port.

The Atlantic of the same line was more fortunate. She cleared Liverpool for New York with a large number of passengers on board, and soon after she was out of sight of land the shaft snapped, leaving the vessel perfectly helpless. In those days ball news did not travel by cable, and no one was very uneasy about her safety, for the reason that no one at her port of departure knew whether she had arrived at her destination or not and no one on this side of the Atlantic was certain that she had sailed.

Days grew into weeks and then a Cunarder, at that time the only rival of the Collins Line, came into port and brought the news of the Atlantic's departure from the other side. As the days wore on without bringing any sign of the vessel excitement grew intense. Days lengthened into weeks and weeks into months without any word from the missing craft. Then the Africa of the Cunard Line came into port, and as soon as the vessel was in hailing distance her captain shouted through his trumpet that the Atlantic had returned to Queenstown after a thirty-three days' sojourn upon the Atlantic with a broken shaft, but with all well on board. The news spread rapidly throughout the city, and old timers can remember how the tidings were announced from the boards of every theater in New York that night.

The Ocean Monarch and the Ellore were the next to make a mysterious exit. After them the steamship City of Boston went a-missing. The only trace ever found of her was a board picked up at sea, which bore some rude lettering to the effect that the vessel was sinking when the message was scratched upon it. It was found Feb. 11, 1870. Ten years later a bottle was washed ashore on the Irish coast which, when broken open, was found to contain a memorandum signed by an engineer, which stated that the steamship Zanzibar, a vessel that sailed from New York for Glasgow the previous year and had never been heard from, had foundered at sea. No other tidings were ever had of the ill-fated craft.

Another vessel whose fate is shrouded in mystery is the sloop-of-war Wasp, Capt. Blakely, which, after gallantly capturing the Reindeer and Avon, disappeared and was never heard from again. Concerning her long absence, the genial Autocrat of the Breakfast Table said, reminiscently:

"Long after the real chance had utterly vanished I pleased myself with the fond illusion that somewhere on the waste of waters she was still floating, and there were years when I never heard the sound of the great guns booming from the navy yard without saying to myself, 'The Wasp has come!' and almost thinking I could see her as she rolled in, crumpling the water before her, weather beaten, barnacled, with shattered spars and threadbare canvas, welcomed by the shouts and tears of thousands."

A marine disaster which attracted universal attention at the time it happened was the loss at sea of the British ironclad Captain. By that accident 472 lives were lost, including Capt. Hugh Burgoyne and Capt. Cowper Coles, the designer of the ship. The vessel capsized in a heavy squall off Cape Finisterre soon after midnight, Sept. 7, 1870, and sank within three minutes. Her destruction was attributed to a low freeboard and a heavy top weight.

The list can be strung out almost indefinitely, but perhaps the most fantastic story of all is the disappearance of the crew of the brig Mary Celeste—one which Capt. Shufeldt of the United States Navy, who was directed to investigate the affair, called "a sad and silent mystery of the sea."

It is, indeed, a baffling puzzle to tell what became of the officers and crew of that vessel. The facts, as briefly stated by Consul Sprague in a letter from Gibraltar, dated Jan. 6, 1873, are that a British brigantine, the Dei Gratia, met in latitude 38 degrees 20 minutes North, longitude 17 degrees 30 minutes West, an abandoned vessel, which, on closer approach was made out to be the Mary Celeste.

As the broad surface of the Atlantic is strewn with derelicts this meeting of an abandoned craft cannot at first sight be considered remarkable. But there were features to it that rendered it so and not the least remarkable among them was that everything was found in shipshape order on board the brig. The hull was sound in every part and the cargo was well stowed and in good condition. A vial of medicine which stood upright on the table in the cabin showed that the vessel had not experienced rough weather, and the last entry in the log showed that she was in sight of the Azores at the time it was made. Everything on board seemed to be in its proper place and to this late date there has been no clue to the mystery of her abandonment. Her master, B. S. Briggs, was also her part owner. He was considered an expert seaman, and was accompanied on this voyage by his wife and young child. With the crew there were thirteen persons on board.

The strangest part of it all is that when the Mary Celeste was sighted she was jogging along with all sail set, and it was by the merest accident that the officers of the Dei Gratia had their attention attracted to the vessel. As the vessels drew near it became apparent that no one was on board the brig, and a boat's crew from the Dei Gratia was sent to investigate. Among other things was found a sword, which seemed at first to betray marks of blood. Dents were discovered on the railing, and the conclusion reached by the sailors was that there had been a mutiny on board the brig and that the survivors had taken to the boats. Experts who examined the sword demonstrated that the stains were iron rust. Nothing has been heard of the crew from that day to this.

Moses Price Cured of Rheumatism.

The many cures of rheumatism cured by Chamberlain's Pain Balm during the past few months have given the people great confidence in its curative properties, and have shown that there is one preparation that can be depended upon for that painful and aggravating disease. Honaker Bros., Lorain, Ohio, say: "Mr. Moses Price, of this place, was troubled with rheumatism for a long time. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has cured him. He says that the Balm has no equal." TRACKED BY SOLDIERS.

The Rev. Frank Stringfellow, of the diocese of Virginia, whose lectures attracted so much attention in Washington last winter, gives the following account of one of his war adventures, during which period he acted as a Confederate scout. Stopping with a friend at a farm house they were invited to join the family at supper, and were partaking of roast turkey, a rare luxury in those days when the negro girl, who waited upon the table, returned from some errand to the kitchen breathless with excitement. A party of Union soldiers, so she stated, had risen into the yard, insisting that there was a Confederate spy concealed about the premises and declaring their intention of taking him "dead or alive."

A large reward was at all times offered for his capture, and Stringfellow knew that if taken, hanging would be his fate, says the Philadelphia Times. Springing to his feet he seized two loaded revolvers which he had laid aside during supper, and stood for a moment irresolute. His hostess had risen also and, after some reflection, directed him to remove his shoes as quickly as possible and follow her.

In the meantime the party of Federals had made their way to the front door of the house, where they were endeavoring to force an entrance. There was no time to be lost, and following his guide they both passed with unshod feet, into the passage, now resounding with the blows of the party outside upon the heavy door, and up the stairway.

Arriving in the upper hall his hostess showed him a ladder leading into a loft above, and bidding him ascend it as quickly as possible, left him and rejoined her friends in the supper room. When Stringfellow had closed the trap door behind him he found himself in a large, low attic, only partly floored, at one end of which he perceived by the moonlight which streamed in from an uncurtained window, an aperture formed by the roof of a small shed which adjoined the main building. Into this opening he squeezed himself, and, lying at full length, a pistol cocked in either hand, awaited his fate.

That the Federals had accomplished their purpose was evident from the sounds which reached him as they passed from room to room in their search for him. Presently the sounds grew louder. They were climbing the attic stairs, and a moment after, piloted by the negro waitress bearing a tallow candle in her hand, they burst through the trap door and entered the apartment.

"I was certain that the girl was going to betray me," said Stringfellow, "and for the first time in my life I heard my heart beat. I was mistaken, however. Holding the candle in such a way as to throw my place of concealment into the shadow, she exclaimed:

"'But, now, I done tole you all he want here; but you wouldn't res' satisfied twell you saw for yourself; an' now you done let him git clar way f'om you.'"

When the clatter of horses' hoofs and the quiet which followed left no doubt as to the departure of the Federals, Stringfellow, preparing to emerge from his hiding-place, was startled by a rustling sound behind him. It was presently accompanied by a voice, which he recognized as that of his companion, who, impelled by the first law of nature, had preceded him into his place of refuge, and, congratulating each other upon their narrow escape, they rejoined the family below. Their friends advised their leaving the house at once, declaring that the soldiers might return at any moment, but Stringfellow begged that they might first be allowed to fortify themselves with a little supper.

Accordingly, they resumed their seats at the table and renewed their attack upon the turkey, which their hostess, at the approach of the Federals, had prudently thrust beneath a small settee. Their horses were gone, they discovered, and thinking it safer to separate, they set out on foot in opposite directions. After proceeding for some distance, Stringfellow discovered a hayrick near the road, and crawling beneath it slept there till morning. When day dawned he lay watching the road, hoping that some mounted Federal would pass and thus enable him to supply the place of his lost steed. Several parties of two and three clattered by, but this did not suit his purpose.

"What I wanted," he said, "was an orphan. Someone who seemed to be alone in the world and friendless."

Presently he spied his man trotting along on a high-stepping bay mare. Springing from his place of concealment he cleared the fence and covering the horseman with his revolver ordered him to dismount. Unarmed and entirely unprepared for the assault nothing remained to the Federal but acquiescence. As he drew his foot from the stirrup Stringfellow slipped his into it and by the time he had reached the ground our hero was in the saddle. Putting spurs to the newly-acquired steed he dashed down the road, leaving the discomfited Federal to gaze after him in mute astonishment.

The Change of Life.

Women nearing this critical period require strength, health, and cheerful spirits.

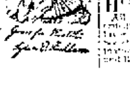

The sole aim of this time should be to keep well.

The invaluable aid always is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The girl about to enter womanhood can find the same assistance from the same source.

Mrs. W. W. Culner, Palatka, Fla., writes:—

"I was in ill health from change of life. I took your compound and am now well. I recommend it as the best remedy for all weakness through the many changes which all women have to pass from early life to the grave."

All druggists sell it. Address in confidence, Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass. Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, 25 cents.

"On or off the line, we're with the majority—'stuck' on Pearline!" And they're right—you will observe that their heads are level. Millions of women sing the same song at the clothes line. They may express it differently, but they mean the same thing. They mean that their work is easy and sooner done—and better done. No clothes worn out with the endless rub, rub, rub on the washboard. No backs tired out with it, either.

These millions of women mean that they're using Pearline, saving labor, time, and money with it, and have proved it to be perfectly harmless. Now, what do you mean? Surely you don't mean to try to do without it?

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 312 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Old Bachelor (very nearsighted)—Where's your husband?

BEFORE WE WERE BOYS

A Locomotive That Was in Use Back in the Thirties.

At 12:30 o'clock, on its way to the world's fair, where it is to be placed on exhibition, the historic locomotive, "old John Bull," with its two unique looking passenger coaches attached, steamed into the Pittsburg depot, where a great crowd was awaiting its arrival, among the number being The Sentinel reporter.

Short, jerky puffs of black smoke, bell ringing in a sharp, cheerful tone, and whistle piping an asthmatic strain, heralding its arrival, it presented an odd contrast to the locomotives of today, and when its four foot driving wheels ceased to move and the old locomotive came to a standstill, the crowds gathered around it to inspect one of the oldest railroad locomotives now in existence.

She was built in England in 1830 and shipped to this country, doing duty on the Camden and Amboy railroad in the east until nearly the year 1866, when she was withdrawn and shipped to Washington as a relic of the earliest period of railroad locomotion. Several weeks ago she was taken to the shops near Jersey City, overhauled and placed in condition for the most momentous trip of its eventful existence, on which it started last Monday morning, leaving Jersey City at that time.

The John Bull weighs 22,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender, and 22,200 including the tender. The ordinary standard passenger locomotive in use on the Pennsylvania railroad at present weighs 176,000 pounds, or more than five times as much as its original predecessor. The passenger coaches attached, two in number, are the same that the engine used to pull sixty years ago when she was in active service. They, too, present a strange contrast to the coaches of today.

The party on board the train was C. L. Kimball and G. W. Boyd, Pennsylvania passenger agents, Trainmaster C. H. Walton and Wilson Clark, Road Foreman of Engineers A. H. Polhamus, and a half dozen representatives of the press of Lima, Van Wert and other points. The train crew was as follows: Conductor Charles Ross, Brakemen Mike McGary, Joe Meads and E. Brown, Engineer William Gates and Fireman Andy Miller, Crestline to this city; Engineer Peter Carter and Fireman Kramer, Fort Wayne to Chicago. The trip from Crestline to Fort Wayne was made without any accident. Engineer Gates says that the "John Bull" can run thirty miles an hour with ease. At this city a number of newspaper men boarded the train, upon invitation of Messrs. Boyd and Kimball, and went to Plymouth, where they will take No. 8 for the return trip. The Sentinel was represented by C. I. Drummond.

The trip from Crestline to Fort Wayne was one continual ovation, great crowds turning out to see the queer train at all stations.

Cushman, notice of whose shocking death appeared in this paper yesterday, was a married man and lived with his wife in this city since last September. The bereaved widow was formerly Miss Olie Logan, of Plymouth. Besides a wife, the deceased brakeman leaves a widowed mother and one brother, who reside in Plymouth.

Melville D. Landon, known to a certain grade of newspaper literature as "Eli Perkins," had a disagreeable trip, recently, as he describes it, on a railroad train between Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Landon, alias Perkins, was in the sleeper, and an unfortunate difference of opinion occurred between him and the porter of the car, who is alleged to have been of African descent. Some remarks of Mr. Landon, alias Perkins, were regarded by the porter as insulting in their nature and were resented by force. The result was disastrous to the distinguished traveler, lecturer, and humorist. The wounds were not dangerous, but were decisive. On arriving at St. Louis Mr. Landon exhibited his facial disfigurement and reported the case to the railroad officials, and he gives it out that the presiding genius of the sleeping car was discharged. All that is published in regard to the affair is based on Mr. Landon's statement. A German nobleman of great repute named Munchausen, a baron in rank, told enlarged stories of his travels. Not being a professional humorist with access to the modern press, it is difficult to imagine in what language he would have described a sleeping car adventure of this description.

A fine program will be given Monday evening at the Empire Bazaar in old Morton club rooms. 21-2t

MARRIAGE OF ROYALTY.

Local News of Interest as Gathered by the Sentinel Reporter in the Society Circles of the City.

The marriage of Prince Ferdinand Maximilian Charles Leopold Marie, of Saxe Coburg Gotha, and the Princess Marie Louise, daughter of the Duke of Parma, was celebrated yesterday with considerable pomp and ceremony and in the presence of a brilliant assemblage at the villa Pianore, via Reggio, in Rome. There were two ceremonies the civil and religious.

The bride was robed in a magnificent gown of white, corded silk, covered with a net-work of the finest pearls, and wore a diamond necklace that four times encircled her throat. The groom was in full military uniform, while the breast of his tunic was covered with nearly a score of medals and decorations, including the decoration of St. Stanislaus, bestowed upon him by the czar of Russia.

The Prince's mother, the Princess Clementine, stood by his side during the ceremony, and in the group immediately back of the couple were the prime minister of Bulgaria, the members of the cabinet and many people distinguished in military and diplomatic circles. At the close of the religious ceremony, which was performed at 1 o'clock with all the pomp of the Greek church, a wedding breakfast was served to 200 guests.

The groom is the youngest son of the late Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg Gotha and of the Princess Clementine of Orleans, daughter of King Louis Phillipe, and is consequently closely related to the royal families of England and Belgium. He is thirty-two years of age, has never before been married, is extremely intellectual and speaks seven languages. In 1887 he accepted the Bulgarian crown from the delegates from Sofia. The bride is the daughter of Robert Duke of Parma. She is twenty-three years of age. The wedding was originally fixed for April 10, but was postponed until yesterday at the request of the bride, for personal reasons. The prince will maintain a magnificent court at Sofia. During the last month he has bought seven hundred liveries for lackeys, and many coaches and horses.

STATISTICS OF HOMICIDE.

The census is giving some interesting figures relative to homicide. It does not pretend to say how many homicides there are in the United States a year, which would, perhaps, be a difficult matter to determine, but it is able to give the statistics of the men confined in jail for this crime. These number 7,386, or, omitting doubles, 6,958 men and 428 women, and as to color, 4,325 are white, 2,730 are negroes, 93 Chinese, 1 Japanese and 92 Indians.

This showing is not favorable for "the colored brother," says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. White contributing barely eleven per cent of the population to furnishes thirteen per cent of the murderers. Nor can this be charged, as men like Mr. Cable do, to the prejudice of Southern whites against the negroes, for there is relatively more of the latter in jail in the North than in the South. In the Northern Central division—New England and the Middle states—nearly one per cent of the local negro population, or four per cent of the adult male negroes, are convicts, while the proportion exceeds five per cent in New York and New Jersey and throughout the Western division on the Pacific coast.

But as to the homicide statistic. The figures of the South give white homicides, 1,300; negro homicides, 2,311.

Considering how greatly the whites outnumber the negroes, this is not a creditable exhibit of the latter. The census does not give the race of the victims, but from these figures it is quite evident that the proposition can be laid down that more white persons are killed by negroes than vice versa.

The census statistics go into the question of parentage, native and foreign, but it does not seem to prove anything here, either that the natives or the foreigners have a particular tendency toward homicide, but it does show that there has been a great increase in crime, and particularly murder. In this country in the last decade. We had 4,608 homicides in 1880 and 7,351 in 1890, they having grown from ninety-two per 1,000,000 in the former to 117 per 1,000,000 the latter year, an increase of 27.17 per cent.

The home of murder is in the Far West. Arizona leads with murders in the proportion of 903 to each 1,000,000; Nevada is second with 896, and California third with 315. In all the states murder is more common than ten years ago.

The only states that can show any improvement—that is, any reduction in crime—are Rhode Island, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Missouri, Wisconsin, Colorado, South Dakota, Wyoming and Washington.

The census develops some unpleasant truths. A large majority of the murderers are educated persons. The illiterate constitute only thirteen per cent in the East and only twelve per cent in the West. In the South the illiterates are more numerous because of the negroes, but the proportion of negro murderers who can read and write appears to be greater then the average for the noncriminals.

Nor can it be charged that whisky is the cause of most of the trouble. Of the murderers 1,289 are total abstainers and 1,267 drunkards. We do not know the total of these two elements in the population, but it would seem that the total abstainer makes a worse showing than his "awful example."

Again, the attempt to trace murder to certain physical conditions has not proved very satisfactory. An overwhelming majority, or 6,149 murderers, were in perfect health, mental and physical, when they committed the crime. 612 were in poor health, 283 insane, 263 crippled—and the mind also might have been affected—and fifty-two blind deaf, mute or idiotic.

A point, however, which may prove something is that so large a proportion, [illegible] fifths—had no trade, and that one fifth were idle and out of employment at the time they committed the crime for which they are suffering punishment. Idleness and lack of occupation, therefore, would seem to have a much worse influence than illiteracy or drunkenness.

Shortly after 12 o'clock this morning an alarm of fire was turned in to headquarters over the telephone. The department located the blaze in a building owned by Fred Rippe on Barr, between Wayne and Berry streets, and occupied by L. J. Cordway as a feed store. The wind was blowing furiously and there was danger of a serious conflagration. The fire was soon under control. The interior of the store was, however, completely demolished. The loss to the stock was about $200, which amount is covered by insurance with Schrader & Wilson. The building was only slightly damaged. The cause of the fire is a mystery. Andy Scherer, night clerk at the police station, saw a man about the place a few moments before the fire occurred. The blaze started in the center of the room at the end of some grain bins. A lamp may have exploded.
